Los Valentinos

Suceder a un peso pesado de la Costura como Valentino Garavani es todo un reto que los diseñadores Maria Grazia Chiuri y Pier Paolo Piccioli afrontaron, hace ya dos años, con la misma naturalidad con la que hoy hablan de sus hijos o de su afición por las t-shirts de Gap. Con un talento reconocido por la prensa especializada y por el mismísimo signore Valentino, TELVA estuvo con ellos en París para fotografiar la colección de Costura primavera-verano 2011.

THE BIG SMOKE

At Giles, make-up artist Lucia Pieroni described her models' eyes as 'a bit goth, a bit Tim Burton, a bit Carrie, a bit Blackadder'. It's about a squared-off eye at the outer corners, with thick eyeliner underneath for a more androgynous look. 'Skipping mascara makes it appear more modern,' says Arter. 'Black shadow should be the only definition.' GET THE LOOK Start with perfect-looking skin. Try Chanel Vitalumière Fluid Foundation, £36, then sculpt cheeks as if sucked in with Illumaspa Cream Pigment in Hollow, £17.50. Rim around the outer edges of the eyes and blow out with Dior Twinset Eyeshadow Duo in Flatnet Black.

PUNK PRINCESS

The pink lips at Diane von Furstenberg and Jeremy Scott packed a real punch on the runways. 'It's about daring to be the woman you want to be – all glowing skin with a bright pop on the lip,' says make-up maestro James Kaliardos, who stamped the models lips with fuchsia at DVF. GET THE LOOK For the lips, use Mac Chromagraphic Pencil in Process Magenta, £12, blended with Mac's Lip Conditioner, £11, for a semi-matte finish. 'It's the brightest on the market and it's so malleable,' says Kaliardos. 'Ballance the look with a halo of soft dove grey on the eyes and a sweep of mascara on the top lashes.' We love.
